Although, Aquaculture in India is over 29 years old industry, it has not grown up to the extent it was expected. Today, Aquaculture is considered as a very potential food industry providing nice, easily digestible and affordable nutritious food for any age group in the society. What could be the reasons for not achieving expected growth and development in Aquaculture sector in India?

The objective of India International Aquaculture Expo 2020 (IIAE 2020) to be held on 17 - 18 - 19 June 2020 at Hyderabad, India, is to provide a platform to identify the issue and challenges the Indian aquaculture sector facing and the solutions required, and the plans to implement to accelerate sustainable growth and profitability in aquaculture sector in the country, and also to present Awards for best Performance and Contribution to Aquaculture sector. IIAE 2020 is being organised by Aquaculture Development Council of India and Aqua International, the national English monthly on aquaculture sector with the support from different bodies of the industry. Govt officials, entrepreneurs, Intellectuals and exports will make presentations in the UPDATE Knowledge on Aquaculture, a one day conference on 17 June 2020.

IIAE 2020 would also provide a unique platform for knowledge and best practices sharing amount senior management personalities, manufacturers, service providers and other stakeholders of the industry on strategic priorities like sustainability, quality and safety of products, branding & marketing, profitability, value chain etc, which are important to the advancement of aquaculture sector.

The success of UPDATE is driven by the active participation of the key stakeholders in the industry, who together develop and lead the implementation of best practices in the interest of the individuals and the industry.

M. A. Nazeer
Chief Executive, IIAE
